Andrew Griffin - Photographer

A bit about yourself:

Going to the moon was the thing to do the year I was born. Photographing buildings have a few things in common with portraits of people, most buildings have a photogenic side, it's not always the most obvious. Some buildings improve with age unfortunately most don't. Thankfully buildings sit still and don't blink when they are having their picture taken. That doesn't mean that buildings don't have their bad days.

Job Description:

With over twenty years of professional photographic experience, Durban-based photographer, Andrew Griffin has built up an impressive body of work that captures the diversity of life in South Africa.

Whether he's documenting CSR initiatives, colossal construction projects from start to finish or individuals in the healthcare, education and sustainability sectors, his images are testament to the spirit of people and their achievements.

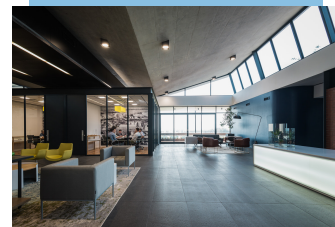

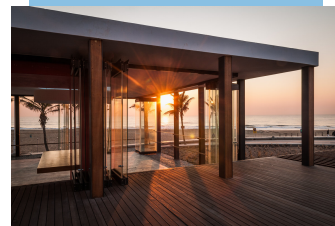

He has worked with clients such as the JT Ross, Growthpoint Properties, Development Bank of Southern Africa and Ndalo Media, forever keeping the client's needs front of mind.

When & Why you joined Leads 2 Business:

I joined L2B in 2022. I like the fact that each of the projects has detailed information regarding the projects. The most important feature is names and contact details. L2B saves me hours of online research.

Accomplishments you are most proud of:

Nothing beats the feeling of seeing your work in a hardcover coffee table book. I'm honoured to have award-winning work featured in the annual SAPOA publication featuring a cross section of commercial projects from around the country. On occasion entries would win their categories. Archdaily is an online curated source for the best architecture from around the world. One of my favourite projects is featured on their website.
